

USING MARKET NEWS SEARCH FOR ARCHIVED STANDARD REPORTS

The Market News Portal for fruits, vegetables and specialty crops is available at:
www.marketnews.usda.gov/portal/fv

On the Markets News Portal you may view and download information for any specific commodity or report type one day at a time, back to 1998, through Browse by Commodity or Browse by Report Type. Information for multiple dates is available through Custom Reports.

The most recently published formatted text and composite reports (PDF format) are available under Standard Reports. Archived text and PDF reports may be found through the Search AMS area and are available for dates up to five years back. Although you can enter a report code, title or key word in the blank area and click Go, there are additional options available for searching at Market News Search. These instructions cover this type of search, and will show you how to retrieve a text or PDF report.

How to find a standard TEXT report:

Standard text reports are available for wholesale terminal markets, shipping points, movement and specialty crops. They are identified with a code, usually just under the phone number in the body of the report or in the web url link. If you do not know the report code you can go to Standard Reports on the left side of the Portal home page and view a sample report to obtain the report code. You can also search for text reports with key words such as "New York Terminal Prices" to get results showing multiple reports for the same location.

Example of a terminal text report with report code, "NX_FV020" in this case:
